- (i) There was a capital called Kāñcī where the king was Supratāpa. Once while stealing the wealth of a richman, four thieves were caught by the policemen in the mouth of the burgler's hole there. They were chained and produced before the king. Calling the hangmen the king ordered, "O hangmen, take these four thieves outside the city and kill them placing on the pike". Then at the command of the king, three thieves were killed by the hangmen placing on the pike.
- (ii) Gandhiji said, "My life is my message". In fact he lived exactly as he said in every sphere of life. To conquer untruth with truth, hatred with love, violence with non-violence — this was his mission of life, this was his message. He wanted to establish in India a kingdom of righteousness. He said that India should be so built up that even the poorest subject here might feel her to be his own country, that there should be no distinction between the high and the low, the land should be free from the poison of untouchability and drunkenness, man and woman should have equal rights, land and state should be public properties, and justice should be established everywhere.
- (iii) One day a poor lady came to Buddha and prayed for medicine to enliven her dead child. Buddha said that he would enlive her dead child if she could bring some mustard seeds from a house where death had never occurred. The bereaved lady roamed from door to door and could not find such a house where death had never occurred. She came with a heavy heart. Then Buddha advised her to give up grief, as death is certain to everybody.
